Single Source Responsibility

Whether you require a completely new production line or one constructed from existing, remanufactured and retooled machinery, Apex engineers and technicians are ready to develop your new systems from concept through start-up.

Our comprehensive project management capability provides you with a "one stop", single source for all critical factors including engineering, design, equipment procurement, construction, installation, training and follow-up support.

"Total Systems Solutions" Approach

Apex is experienced in virtually all aspects of metal container manufacturing. Our technical staff can assist with evaluation, specification and development of your turnkey system – then apply a "total systems solutions" discipline to bring together technologies from a variety of suppliers and sources – integrating them to best suit your specific application and production objective.
